

Development of Written Expression Introductory Level

Course load: 96 hours

Course Description

The conception and teaching of the writing process are mainly based on the contributions of cognitive sciences and psycholinguistic studies, which consider the act of writing as a complex human activity which involves linguistic, physiological, psychological and social aspects all of which interact in the creation of meaning. At the same time, the act of writing is considered an interactive process, it goes from an addresser to an addressee, the addresser combines and provides context or world knowledge which is received by the addressee who will finally builds up the meaning. In other words, knowledge is generated in the interaction between each of the variables found in a written text which contributes to the construction of meaning. Finally, in order to achieve this construction of meaning in the written composition and in order to be successful, one should be able to achieve:

- development and connection of ideas or clauses;
- the recognition of the hierarchical relationship between ideas, and
- the recognition of the global organization.

Therefore, Development of Written Expression-Introductory Level stems from the concept that writing is a process with no definite element, on the contrary, it should be constantly exercised. In this process we begin with planning and this implies applying cognitive abilities such as analysis, deduction, synthesis, etc. Then, the ideas must be reflected in a process called writing and finally, there are two elements which need to be applied to the resulting text: proofreading and editing.

In this course students will display their communicative competence in the written expression realm, but, at the same time, they will continue practicing the other linguistic skills, i.e.: oral and written production and oral comprehension, which will be benefited by the writing practice.

During this course, the students will develop the ability to write brief and simple texts in Spanish.

Objectives

The main goal of this course is that students can write texts at a A2 level (CEFR)- basic user of Spanish as a foreign language. Therefore, they must achieve the following specific objectives:

- a) To develop the ability of writing simple texts in Spanish.
- b) To know the differences between Peninsular Spanish and Rioplatense Spanish.
- c) To appropriately apply the rules of pedagogical grammar in written texts.
- d) To apply writing composition strategies efficiently (the text addressee characteristics, the message intention, its content and the written channel will be taken into account).
- e) To employ cohesion and coherence concepts in the writing of simple texts.
- f) To simultaneously maximize the other linguistic skills: reading comprehension, listening comprehension and oral expression which will provide the students with more knowledge about a topic and will enable them to convey their ideas in a written text in the best possible way.

Students must read the required readings and complete the established assignments for each class. There will be a mid-term written assignment during the semester, which they will have to pass before the end of classes. The course load of this subject will be completed with tutorial classes, workshops for writing and mandatory practical tasks evey week during the course.

The course grade consists of -10% class participation

-20% mid-term written assignment

-20% practical tasks

- 50% final exam

B) Attendance Policy:

It will be required an 75% class attendance, the student who does not meet that percentage will automatically receive an "F". In this class, 0.5 points will be deducted from your Attendance grade for every unexcused absence or if the student does hand in the compulsory written assignment in due time and proper course or any other task given by the teacher.

Missed Exams: "Make-up" exams are a privilege, one to be extended only to students who have missed an exam with prior arrangement (one week notice) with the instructor or due to extenuating circumstances.

Participation: We attach great importance to participation as a learning experience. A student's grade will suffer changes because of actions which might disrupt the group experience. For this reason all cell phones must be turned off before the class begins. If you have a unique circumstance for which you must leave the phone on, consent from the instructor is required beforehand. Students will have a significant point total deducted from their class grade if they do not adhere to this regulation.

Plagiarism: An important objective of this course is to get students to learn how to write expository, informative and advertising texts. Therefore, students are expected to write their own work. Plagiarism not only undermines this learning process but also represents a serious breach of College policy and of academic honesty.

Outside sources should always be referenced in the essay's bibliography. Plagiarized work will receive an automatic F. If you have any doubts on what constitutes plagiarism, do not hesitate to ask the Instructor.
